RE: Grants Update

The following memo is in response to recent questions about City grants, related processes and other general information.

- Attached are two visual aids: one that provides a general overview of a typical grants process and another more detailed one highlighting the key phases and steps involved with the City's Grant Cycle, from idea to submission to award and then closeout.
- Also attached is the list of key Active Grants and Grants Personnel, as requested. The grants personnel list contains both administrative and programmatic positions and lists funding source for each.
- The City has 3 full-time positions whose primary duties are to support and provide grants management: a Grants Manager and Grants Accountant both located in Finance and a Grants Specialist in the City Manager's Office. The Grants Manager addresses primarily the financial components of the grant cycle in the post-award phase, such as financial reporting, requests for reimbursement and closeout whereas the Grants Specialist assists with the pre-award process and throughout the life of the grant with grant seeking, submission, grant start-up, training and technical assistance and programmatic grant reporting.
- The table below references these positions and a few others City-wide. It represents only a portion of all City Grants Personnel. For more information on other grants personnel, refer to the first document immediately following this memo.

- Regarding the question about key grant activity, there is an attachment labeled Key Grants Activity 20-21. This includes grants that were awarded, those that were pursued but not awarded and those that are actively pending notification. Please note that this does not include grants that may have been reviewed but determined not viable for reasons, such as high matching costs.

Grants are sought based on interest expressed by department staff or directors and that may be routed to the Grant Specialist for review.

Currently, grants are either identified by a department or other City staff member and then typically routed to the Grants Specialist to review, discuss and assist, as applicable. The Grants Specialist also receives notices of funding opportunities by monitoring funding websites and search engines and participating in professional associations. If an opportunity is identified, it is routed to departments to gauge interest and capacity.

If viable and assistance is needed, the Grants Specialist will work with department staff leads a grant workgroup to develop and submit applications according to the internal procedures established.

- Regarding the question about grants training for staff:

Written procedures are drafted, have been reviewed and are pending adoption by City Executive Management. The interest is to formally conduct staff training on grants management this Spring.

The current processes for staff training are:

- Staff and all partners receive training about a grant's obligations and requirements starting with review of the grant opportunity. If a staff is interested in a grant, they should contact the City's Grant Specialist to review the grant's key items and determine viability based on various factors, e.g. match requirement, departmental capacity to assume responsibility of new program, sustainability, etc.
- The City's Grants Specialist will also occasionally draft grant summaries, especially in those instances when funding identified matches an interest or need,. These provide highlights of the grant requirements. These summaries are sent out and a meeting scheduled to further discuss.

3. Once a grant is awarded, and an award letter with contract is received from a funder, the Grants Specialist reviews the contract in conjunction with key staff, e.g. Legal, and identifies key obligations as required by Funder, writes them down in an Internal Operational Plan, and schedules a Kick-Off Meeting.
 4. During the Kick-Off meeting, the Grants Specialist reviews this plan with all City Departments involved with administration of this grant. The objective is to provide a seamless transition from pre- to post- award and highlight key grant specific requirements, e.g. reporting requirements (programmatic and financial), grant portals utilized, with grants staff.
 5. Additionally, the Funder will require or recommend Grant-specific training during the project period. These are also outlined during the Kick-Off Meeting.
 6. Grant Specialist also is available for training and technical assistance throughout the Grant's Project Period.
 7. Additional Grants Training on Best Practices in Grants Management is also available from highly respected and sector recognized trainers such as National Grants Management Association (NGMA), Thompson Training, Management Concepts.
- Regarding the question about working with the University on Grants (Finding, Applying, and Maintaining)

The City has a long-standing history of working with Texas State on numerous initiatives and projects – including grants. The nature of the grants relationship fluctuates depending on the opportunity and project. See following for current efforts:

1. Collaborative Applications (either as Primary, Pass Through, or Partner)
 - a. Primary – On occasion, the City is the primary applicant on a grant. In these instances, we partner with Texas State to assist with one of the programmatic components. Below are examples of how the City has partnered with the University for grants elements:
 - i. Interns
 - ii. Volunteers , E.g. Bobcat Build
 - b. Pass Through – The City is the primary and subgrants (passes through) with TX State for a portion of the grant – e.g. River Clean up of Hydrilla, Water Testing, Edwards Aquifer Partnership
 - c. Partner – The City may partner with the University to provide a portion of time on a proposed project, or lend assistance with resource development, e.g. recent NSF Application. TX State Department approached City Staff to partner on grant.
 2. Route Funding Opportunities – University may route opportunities to City depending on the type of activities/projects supported by Funder and vice-versa.
 3. Executive Management - Executive management meet bimonthly with TX State Administration and Key Staff to discuss key issues and initiatives. At these meetings, there may be information shared about grant opportunities.
 4. Connected Infrastructure for Education, Demonstration, and Applied Research (CIEDAR) – This is an initiative that the City Manager is working on with a local building company and other community groups/partners and Texas State to discuss affordable housing initiatives. (<https://www.marc.txstate.edu/CIEDAR.html>)
- Regarding the question about providing grant assistance for the community

The City provides for and/or works with the community on grants as follows:

1. Route Funding Opportunities – The City routes opportunities to community agencies/entities depending on the type of activities/projects supported by Funder and vice-versa.
 - a. Based on viability review and discussion with executive management, the City shares opportunities with community organizations that are eligible. Grants information is also routed to key City Staff, e.g. Communications, who further disseminate a grant opportunity to community networks.
2. Collaborative Application - The City may ask a community agency to collaborate on a proposal, such as providing a service and/or personnel – a partnership type application for example, Utility Assistance distribution.
3. Social Services Application (Human Advisory Board) - The City of San Marcos provides annual funding in support of social service programs to community-based organizations. The City seeks to fund programs enabling individuals and families to transition out of current circumstances towards becoming self-sufficient. In the 2021 budget year, the Community Initiatives Division will also be assuming the responsibility for administering the City's Human Services Advisory Board Grants.
4. Coronavirus Relief Fund (CRF) General Fund (potential funding): This program will provide for additional emergency pandemic relief funding, as well as fund programs intended to build non-profit capacity in San Marcos. The Community Initiatives Division may be administering an additional amount of funding to be determined in late March.
5. Women Infants and Children (WIC) - The main focus of the WIC program is to educate parents/caregivers on the proper nutrition for babies and young children. In addition to nutrition education, WIC clients also receive breastfeeding support and education, supplemental WIC foods, and referrals to other health and social services. WIC applicants can begin the eligibility process online at www.texaswic.org , by calling 512-393-8040 or emailing wicinfo@sanmarcostx.gov

The City applies for funding opportunities for which local governments are eligible and are aligned to the City's mission, strategic priorities, capacity, and needs. The City does not pursue or seek grant funding for individual nonprofit organizational needs. However, the City does and often collaborates with community partners and Texas State on grant applications as either the primary applicant and/or as a partner as was explained above. And, as mentioned, the City provides direct funding or assistance to the community.

In the past, the Council has expressed an interest to support our community and community-based organizations, particularly during these difficult times. I hope this memo and the attached information explain the City's current grant portfolio and convey the scope and breadth of grant work the City does and the resources it has to do so.

If the Council so directs, the City can continue to further explore options for how to support additional resource development with our community partners. This could include the creation of a staff person funded in partnership with the City and local social service agencies.

Please advise if you have any questions.

Thank you.
