Background Information:

The City of San Marcos, in conjunction with Scott Parker of the Trust for Public Land, is attempting to purchase the remaining 151 acres out of the Wildenthal tract at the upper end of Purgatory Creek Natural Area. This acquisition would be the third and final phase of acquisitions from the Wildenthals.

The Trust for Public Land, as with previous acquisitions, has contracted directly with the current owners for the purchase of the land with the intention of immediately selling the land to the City. The total purchase price is $2,265,368. As part of the Phase Two acquisition of approximately 52 acres in March of 2017, the City Council authorized staff to apply for federal grant funds from the U.S. Department of the Interior, Fish and Wildlife Service, through the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, to cover the purchase of this tract.

The federal grant restrictions will include restrictions that are intended to protect habitat for identified endangered species, including the Golden-Cheeked Warbler. Consequently, the uses of the land will be restricted to passive uses such as primitive hiking trails. Uses such as playgrounds, roads or utility infrastructure, that do not enhance the grant purposes would not be allowed.

In connection with the grant funds, the City will be required to contribute the abutting 52 acres acquired in Phase Two as an in-kind match. As a result, any grant restrictions associated with the grant will be extended to the 52 acre tract.

This is the last tract to be added to the Purgatory Creek Natural Area. If purchase is completed the total acreage for the natural area will be approximately 1,065 contiguous acres.
